Long life (100) and very short skirts

Felicity Green, the influential fashion editor at The Daily Mirror, Britain's populist tabloid, who introduced its five million readers to the spirited street style of the Swinging Sixties, including the mini skirt — notably the youthful fashions of Mary Quant and Biba — horrifying the paper's male hierarchy, died on Sept. 10 at her home in London.

She was 100.

Ms. Green also produced a feature on tights — a revolution and a revelation for the garter-and-stocking set — as a must-wear item for women who planned to sit down in their micro-miniskirts.

Perhaps not surprisingly, some of her male colleagues were discomfited by the new styles.

The Mirror's chairman, Cecil King, once accosted Ms. Green in a stairwell at the office. "When are you going to stop putting those dreadful mini-skirts in The Mirror?" he demanded.

"Only when they stop being fashionable, Mr. King," she retorted.

An exotic green bird flew into a terminal at Chicago O'Hare International Airport and was filmed fighting with passengers and airline workers.

Many celebrities do not want to be "recognized" as "role models."

They do want attersion and accolades, recognition and rewards, popularity and prestige. But they do not want the "pressure" to have to live lives that reflect integrity and honesty, purity and decency. They do not want, as many of them have said, "to be a role model." And continue, "I want to live my life as I choose."

Many of us, however, do want role models." We do want someone to look up to, to follow, to be our hero, our example. Often we think, "If I can see it, I can do it. If there is someone who has done it, I know others can do it and so can I!"

David, in many ways, can be "a hero" for most of us. However, he did not want that responsibility. Not because of the pressure that it would put on him. He knew and wanted everyone else to know that his hero was his Lord and he wanted others to "hero-up" to Him, "Blessed," he said, is the person who "trusts in the Lord," and does not "look to the proud or turn aside to false gods." Whenever we look at David, we see a man who knew victory as well as defeat, who sinned and had to plead with God for His forgiveness. He recognized his failures and would never set himself up as a model. And he recognized that there was only One person he could look up to as a model: his Lord and Savior.

When we put our faith in Him we know that He is not a "false god." We can follow Him confidently!

The uncertainties -of life always end with the certainty of death. We know it is there waiting for us. No one knows when their heart will stop. Yet, when the time comes, most individuals have a few last words.

Cardinal Borgia said, "I have provided in the course of my life for everything except death, and now, alas, I am to die unprepared."

Tony Hancock, a British comedian said, "No one will even know I existed. Nothing to leave behind me. Nothing to pass on. Nobody to mourn me. That's the bitterest blow of all."

Elizabeth the First: "All my possessions for one moment of time."

Phillip III, King of France: "What an account I shall have to give God. How I should like to live otherwise than I have lived."

Voltaire, a religious skeptic said, "In twenty years Christianity will be no more. My single hand shall destroy the edifice it took twelve apostles to rear." Some years later, Voltaire's house was used by the Geneva Bible Society to print Bibles.

When Jesus died the words of Psalm 31:5 were on his lips, "Into Your hands, Father, I commit my spirit." As He was ending His life's work, hanging upon His cross and dying for our sins, He declared His faith, hope, trust and confidence in His Father. There was no fear, no regret, no questions about life or death. Only the assurance that His

Issac Ruvalcaba's ... Amazing 5-touchdown performance

Linden had won two straight games and Isaac Ruvalcaba did his part to make it three on Friday. Linden came out on top against Big Valley Christian by a score of 32-20 thanks in part to Ruvalcaba, who rushed for 248 yards and 5 TDs while picking up 10.3 yards per carry. Ruvalcaba's rushing yards production has been exceptional as that marked his sixth straight game with at least 110 yards. Linden was unstoppable on the ground and finished the game with 266 yards. That's the most rushing yards they have managed all season. Loss or not, Big Valley Christian got some senior leadership from Kai Martin and Travis Lema. Martin gained 150 total yards and two touchdowns, while Lema threw for 178 yards and a pair of touchdowns (1 INT) on only 15 passes. Martin got the majority of those receiving yards when he pulled down a pass and took off for a gain of 58 yards.

Linden has now won three of their last four games at home. That run has powered them to a 5-2 record this season. The home wins were made possible by their offensive performance across that stretch, as they averaged 27.0 points over those games. As for Big Valley Christian, their defeat ended a four-game streak of away wins and brought them to 6-2. Coincidentally, Linden and Big Valley Christian will both be playing River Islands the next time they take the field. Linden will head out to face the Rip-tide at 7:00 p.m. on Friday, while Big Valley Christian will host them at 7:00 p.m. on the

Volleyball Ladies continue win streak

Linden waltzed into their match on Tuesday with two straight wins...and they left with three. They put the hurt on the Calaveras Red Hawks with a sharp 3-0 victory.

The win improved Linden's record to 13-11. As for Calaveras, this is the second loss in a row for them and nudges their season record down to 11-9.

Linden had to skate by with only a one-set margin when they last took the court, which might have inspired the three-set drubbing they dealt Riverbank on Thursday. The Lions put the hurt on the Bruins with a sharp 3-0 victory.

The final set scores came out to 25-18, 25-8, 25-12.

Katie Schallberger paced Linden's offense, picking up 11 kills. Schallberger was helped by Saylor Wakeham and Allie Kehoe, who contributed 10 assists each. Wakeham was also solid from the service line: she led the team with six aces.

Linden has been performing well recently, winning five of their last six games. That's given a healthy boost to their 12-11 record this season. Riverbank (0-20) has now lost 31 in a row (dating back to last season).

Fans were treated to a battle of the Lions on Tuesday. Lindennarrowly escaped with a win as the team sidled past Big Valley Christian 3-2. The victory was nothing new for Linden as they're now sitting on three straight.

It was an exciting match in which no team won back-to-back sets, but at the end of the day Linden got the one that really mattered. The match finished with set scores of 25-13, 15-25, 25-22, 23-25, 15-12.

Multiple players turned in solid performances to lead Linden to victory, but perhaps none more so than Saylor Wakeham, who had 22 assists, five digs, and five aces. Hannah Reihl was another key player, getting 15 kills, seven digs, and five aces.

Faye Dobson did everything she could in this defeat, getting 22 kills, 15 digs, three aces, and a solo block, but it just wasn't enough. The team also got some help from Caitlin Echegoyen, who had 12 digs and six aces.

Linden's win bumped their record up to 10-10. As for Big Valley Christian, they have now lost 10 of their last 11 games on the road. That's part of the reason why they have a 9-15 record this season.

Linden wasted no time getting back out on the court and has already played their next match, a 3-0 loss against Bret Harte on the 8th.

Goals for San Joaquin County

A report delivered to the Board of Supervisors during its regular meeting showed progress being made in the Board's six Strategic Priority areas, while outlining new goals for the coming years.

"These updates hold us accountable and ensure that we are on track to achieve the goals we set for ourselves," said Chair and Third District Supervisor Sonny Dhaliwal. "I want to thank our Department heads and employees for their commitment to these objectives. We will continue to support the County Administrator's Office to achieve our initiatives. These priorities ensure we are always working to improving services and increase benefits to the public."

The Board adopted its Strategic Priorities in 2024 that established new and updated goals for the next three fiscal years.

The County Administrator's Office then worked with Departments to develop department-specific SMART Goals (Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant, and Time-Bound) that align with the priorities.

171 Department SMART Goals were developed to implement the Board's strategic priorities.

Tight lines ...

Lake Camanche, rivers, lakes, San Francisco Bay & Pacific Ocean

This week's report focuses on what has changed, what remains important, where to fish, and how to improve your odds. I checked current public fishing reports, official reservoir and river notices, and California Department of Fish and Wildlife (CDFW) regulations.

Important distinction: I found fresh information about river closures, October flow changes, and ocean fishing, but I could not verify a reliable, current catch count for Lake Camanche. I'll separate confirmed updates from seasonal fishing recommendations rather than inventing catches.

Lake Camanche — Main Focus

Location: Lake Camanche

Current conditions and changes

- * Fishing access: Shore fishing remains an option.
- * Private boat launching: The ordinary 2026 public outside-vessel launch season ended October 1. The launch subsequently closed, so don't plan on launching your own boat through the regular public program.
- * Rental boats: EBMUD says rental boats remain available through the on-site concessionaire. Confirm availability and operating hours before traveling.
- * Water conditions: I could not verify a current reservoir elevation, water temperature, or reliable live catch report for October 16. Check conditions before choosing a location.
- * Trout stocking: I could not confirm a new Lake Camanche trout planting for this week. Don't assume the lake was recently stocked.

Bass strategy

Start with rocky points and the edges of deeper water.

1. Throw a small swimbait or crankbait while covering water.
2. If you get follows but no strikes, slow down with a finesse worm or drop-shot.
3. If the sun is high, try a jig or worm around deeper structure.
4. If the water is noticeably warmer than expected, concentrate on shade and depth rather than fishing the entire shoreline.

Tip: Don't keep changing lures every few casts. Work one productive-looking point thoroughly at different depths before moving.

Catfish strategy

Try deeper shoreline access where you can safely fish the bottom. Use a secure sinker rig and fresh bait. Fish during low-light periods and after dark, and bring a headlamp and appropriate landing equipment.

Mokelumne River — Major Access and Safety Update

Location: Mokelumne River

This is the most important river update in this week's report.

Confirmed October notices

1. The Mokelumne River Day Use Area is closed October 23–25.

EBMUD has announced a temporary closure for a special event. The area is scheduled to reopen Monday, October 26.

2. The normal fishing season at that access area has already ended.

EBMUD lists the area's fishing season as January 1–March 31 and from the fourth Saturday in May through October 15. The seasonal fishing closure applies even outside the special-event closure dates.

3. October pulse flows are continuing. EBMUD says it is modifying releases through October to create higher flows of cold, fast-moving water, partly to attract Chinook salmon and make room for winter flood-control operations. Water levels can rise quickly, and wading, swimming, and launching watercraft are restricted during high-flow periods.

Videos captured near the Air France check-in line at the airport's Terminal 5 show the green bird, which may have been a parrot, perching on passenger's heads and luggage.

The bird can be seen becoming aggressive and pecking at anyone who attempts to touch or capture it.

Paris Elbert, an O'Hare worker who captured video of the bird's Oct. 13 visit, said the avian flew into the airport through an open door.

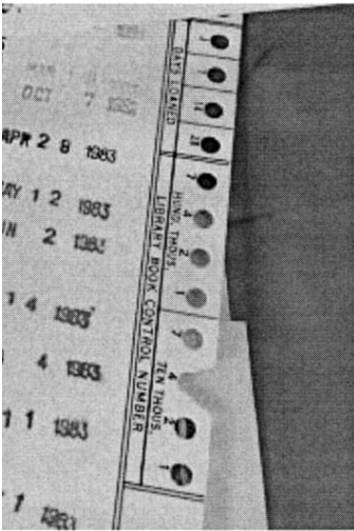

"A lot of people wanted to get the bird, but every time they tried to either grab the bird or be nice to the bird, the bird chose fight, not flight," Elbert told CBS Chicago.

Elbert said a janitor was finally able to capture the bird using a shirt and took it to a veterinarian to be examined and scanned for a microchip.

Old books never die—they sometimes are just returned

Workers sifting through returns at a British Columbia discovered a dusty tome without a barcode was 43 years overdue.

The Greater Victoria Public Library said the book, a copy of Herman Wouk's 1978 novel War and Remembrance, arrived at the facility earlier this month and immediately stood out.

The book was dusty, had a cracked spine and lacked a barcode, but still had a paper check-out card inside revealing it had been due back at the Oak Bay branch on Sept. 1, 1983.

The tome was returned without a note or any other explanation for why its return was delayed for 43 years. Librarians said borrowing records are regularly purged, so the book borrower's identity remains a mystery.

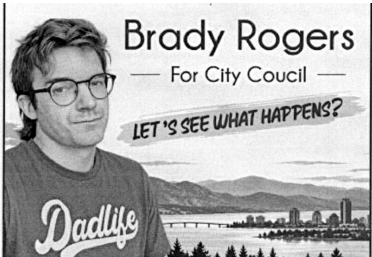

"We're very happy that someone had the courage or conscience to bring it back," Delia Filipescu, the library's coordinator of branch operations, told the Times Colonist newspaper.

Filipescu estimated the book would have accrued about $3,100 worth of late fees under the old system of 20 cents per day, but the library does not intend to pursue any collections.

The tome is among the most overdue books in the library's history, but doesn't take the top spot: a copy of Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town by Stephen Leacock that was checked out in 1916 was returned 82 years later in 1998.

Jokester wins council seat

A British Columbia city council candidate whose humorous campaign signs went viral appears to have won his election, despite branding himself as unqualified.

Brady Rogers, 33, gained attention online for his Kelowna City Council campaign signs, which bore slogans such as "I barely want to do this," "Just trying to pay my rent," "Fine. I'll do it," and "How hard can it be."

Even Rogers' campaign website opens with the message: "Do I enjoy politics? No. Do I know what I'm doing? No. But am I qualified? Also no."

Preliminary results from Saturday's municipal election show Rogers receiving 12,635 votes, coming in fourth among the 37 candidates. If those election results are certified on Tuesday, Rogers' seat on the council will be guaranteed.

Rogers released a video on his campaign's social media page after the preliminary results were announced, saying that despite his campaign's tone, he plans to take the job seriously.

"I'm being a little bit tongue-in-cheek when I say I'm unqualified," Rogers told Global News before the election. "I've never been a politician, but I certainly have experience that I think is very relevant and helpful."

Rogers, a small business owner, said the issues he hopes to tackle with the city council include homelessness, housing affordability and supporting small businesses.

"I'm really good at solving problems, and I also care about problems," he told Castanet. "And sometimes that means I feel obligated to help with them when they arise."

Students design Rubik's cube solution

A quartet of New Zealand engineering students created a robot that solved a 4x4x4 Rubik's cube in a record-breaking time of 9.8 seconds.

Caleb Everitt, Hayden Watson, Maz Cameron and Johann Torres, fourth-year mechatronics engineering students at the University of Canterbury, said they were inspired by a social media video of a robot solving a 4x4x4 cube in 45 seconds.

The students discovered the time was a world record, and well short of the human record of 15 seconds.

"We knew that robots could be better than humans, and we wanted to be the people to break that gap," Cameron said in a university news release. "The 4x4 Rubik's Cube is more complex [than the 3x3], and I think that combination of complexity and a low budget to attempt breaking the record was what excited us."

The team said they improved on the previous machine's time by creating stronger motors and designing their robot in such a way that it doesn't have to reorient the cube to see and manipulate all of its sides.

"The robot has four cameras; it looks at the cube, and sees where all the different colors are," Watson said. "This information is then fed into an open-source algorithm that works out the moves needed to solve it."

The robot's official record attempt came in at 9.806 seconds. The students are now awaiting a response from Guinness World Records to see if they officially took the title.

Hornbill gets a new beak

A southern ground hornbill at a Netherlands zoo has become the first bird in the world to receive 3D-printed prosthesis on both its upper and lower beak.

The Artis Zoo in Amsterdam said the hornbill had an injury leaving both the upper and lower portions of its beak damaged.

"A bird that loses part of its beak loses much more than just a piece of its appearance," the zoo said on social media. "For the southern hornbill in Artis, it meant that he could not take care of himself and could not pick up more difficult food from the ground."

The hornbill underwent a procedure in partnership with Utrecht University's Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, UMC Utrecht and Amnnovis to outfit both its upper and lower beak with prosthetics.

"There are previous cases of birds with one beak prosthesis, but as far as is known from the scientific literature, this is the first time worldwide that a bird gets both an upper and lower beak prosthesis," the zoo said.

Dare devil skateboarder hits 94 MPH

A skateboarder from Spain broke a Guinness World Record in Canada when he was clocked at a speed of 94.34 mph while traveling downhill in Canada.

Guinness World Records confirmed Digo Poncelet, 27, earned the record for the fastest skateboard speed downhill (standing) when he reached the staggering speed on a closed section of Route des Éboulements in Quebec's Charlevoix region.

The location chosen by Poncelet was the same spot where the previous record was set.

Poncelet said he reached a top speed of 91.27 mph on his first test run, which alone would have been enough to take the record, but he waited five more days for better weather conditions and reached a speed of 94.34 mph on Sept. 22. "I never truly admitted to myself that my real objective was to get to 93mph -- It was only when I got that 93 mph that I was completely ecstatic."
