Ducklings tried to book a hotel room

April 22 (UPI) — Animal rescuers in Virginia facilitated a family reunion for a family of curious ducklings who became separated from their mother when they wandered into a hotel.

Richmond Animal Care and Control said that the ducklings wandered through the automatic doors at the Marriott Hotel on 14th and Cary streets in Richmond.

Hotel employees gathered the ducklings in a box and told responding the care and control officer and Richmond park ranger that the ducklings apparently had become separated from a mother duck, who had been spotted in the area earlier in the day.

"So we just connected the dots and put them all back together in the canal that was close by," Animal Care and Control director Christie Chipps Peters told WRIC-TV.

Peters said the mother duck was excited when rescuers brought the box of ducklings to the canal.

"She could hear them making noise and so she came closer, we were like, 'This must be mom.' And they went right back together. Once that was done, we just let them go and have a great day," he said.

Cattle dog is at the wheel

Linden Herald correspondent Judy Scheppmann has a cattle dog that can drive cattle—and drive a vehicle.

It is one of the few dogs in the history of dogkind that works both with her four paws on the ground and two paws on the steering wheel.

Believe it or not.

As the-late PBS TV travel star Huel Howser once said: "That's amazin".

Goal!

Linden's own, Brooke Bryant #17, scores a goal for the Professional Womens Hockey League team Minnesota. Brooke, 23, hails from Linden, and is a four-time Linden High School letter winner in volleyball and softball.

She skated for the Anaheim Lady Ducks

Under19 team and afterwards spent the last five seasons competing as a member of the Minnesota State University Mavericks where she was a four-time WCHA All-Academic Team honoree.

She made quite the impression during her freshman year by leading the team with 11 goals and finishing tied for second with 20 points.

She matched her career-high of 20 points during the 2022-23 campaign, notching seven goals and 13 assists in 36 games played.

Now she is a professional and making goals for her team in Minnesota.

STOCKTON -- An investigation is underway after two men were shot, including a 19-year-old man who died, in Stockton Sunday morning, police said.

Police responded to the 600 block of El Camino Avenue around 9:30 a.m. Sunday where they found two men had been shot.

The 19-year-old man died at the scene while a 70-year-old man was rushed to the hospital with a gunshot wound and is expected to survive.

Police said Sunday night that they arrested Miguelito Asuncion, 36, of Stockton and booked him into jail on a charge of homicide.

But multiple neighbors on El Camino Avenue have their own suspicions, calling this a senseless shooting over whose lawn was whose.

An elderly man was sitting quietly in his rocking chair speaking softly to his grandson. "It took me forty years," he said, "to learn three simple truths. I Would like you to learn them at an early age. One - I could do nothing to be victorious over my sins. Two - that God did not expect me to. And three - that Christ has done it all for me."

David taught those three simple truths centuries ago in one simple verse. "Victory comes from YOU, oh Lord.",

A story is told of a prisoner, who With the help of his friends, planned an escape. Through careful planning they smuggled a gun into the prison yard and hid it. They informed him that a ladder would be up against the wall where the searchlight would not expose it, And they told him that a vehicle would be awaiting him at a certain hour.

"But," he asked, "how do I get out Of MY cell.?" "That's UP to you," they said. Obviously, he did not escape. He remained in his cell because he could not take the first step.

But our Lord has taken the first step in our salvation. He loved the World so very much that He gave His one and only Son to be our Savior. Now, We Must do one of two things: receive Him or reject Him.

Our Lord is a seeking Lord who will save us from our sin through His salvation. It does belong to Him, but He willingly extends it to all of us.

It was the first day of geography class. The teacher was trying to get the class involved in a lively discussion. "What is the shape of the world?" she asked.

Immediately, James held up his hand and said, "My Dad says it's in terrible shape!" And most people would seem to agree with his dad.

Years ago a Psalmist gave us a reason for the condition of the world: "The kings and rulers of the earth," he said, "take their stand together against the Lord ... and His Anointed One."

This Psalm points to the One who was to come - the Messiah. In it we find a description of Jesus - His life, death, resurrection and future reign. This Psalm also describes the rebellion of the nations of the world and their refusal to be obedient to the Word of God. The author wanted his readers to know and understand that God would fulfill His promises of peace and hope, grace and mercy, love and salvation. God, speaking to us through this Psalm, gave us His assurance that He is the One who is in control of all things - past, present and future. He wants us to know that through His Word we can become free from the worries and cares of this world and be certain of being with Him in eternity.

"Serve the Lord with reverent fear," said the Psalmist, and "submit to God's royal Son ... and there will be joy for all who find protection in Him."

Amazin' dog

Judy explains: "Several years ago, I was looking for a dog called a Queensland Heeler. I was at all the cattle sales up and down the state trying to find a breeder or someone who had this breed of puppies.

Judy explains: "I looked everywhere for this type of a cattle dog. A year passed and no luck. However, one day I was in an Escalon store and a guy yelled at me, 'Hi Judy.'

"It was a gentleman I knew from the garden club. So, I asked him, 'Do you know anybody who has Queensland puppies?' He replied, 'I have three litters!'

"He told me where his place was, and I went over to see his puppies. These puppies are born white with a black undercoat. I told this gentleman." "I will take this one'. He picked up the puppy and took his scissors and cut off three little holes in the fur on the puppy's back so when they were weaned, I could pick out the right one. Later, I came and took this puppy home. She had three little clipped spots of hair on her back, so we named her Three Dot!

"This puppy grew to a mature dog, and she is the best cattle dog I have ever owned. She will run to the gate for me to open and will not let the cows get through the gate. They stay ahead of us. One day I was bringing the cattle to another pasture, and I spotted this dog trying to drive my 4-wheeler.

"I just had to take a photo of this event. If dogs could talk, she would say "I can move the cows better from behind the wheel than running and biting their heels!"

Thanks, Judy!

Top honor for Collette Hansen

San Joaquin-Stanislaus CattleWomen

Collette Hansen from Linden was awarded second place California Junior Beef Ambassador award last month in Woodland. She was among four junior contestants: (1st) Demetria Chester, Siskiyou County, (3rd) Layla Toomy, Butte County and (4th) Tanner Ludwick, Inyo-Mono County.

Miss Hansen was scored on a mock media interview on current industry issues. Her public speaking skills were evaluated during her slideshow presentation regarding animal identification and branding cattle that could be taught to elementary school children.

She also wrote a 150-word response to a compelling beef issue by identifying misinformation, and listing positive consumer information that was scored.

The last area of competition was creating three Facebook posts for consumers. Miss Hansen focused on beef nutrition, education, and safety in the cattle industry.

"I learned a lot about the beef industry preparing for the contest even though I was raising a market steer for AgFest. I am now very confident in sharing the beef production story," explained Miss Hansen.

The California CattleWomen hosted the annual contest. This year the California Beef Council provided cash prizes for the top four places. Miss Hansen was awarded $200 as the second-place junior winner.

Miss Hansen is a 15-year-old sophomore and the daughter of Jessica and Ryan Hansen from Linden.

The San Joaquin-Stanislaus CattleWomen is a local organization that promotes the beef industry thought education and outreach activities. The Unit has 48 members ranging in age from 16-90 years old and there are about 1,800 CattleWomen in Calif.

Stephen Dalkowski in 1960...

Legendary baseball pitcher put umpire in Stockton hospital

Stephen Dalkowski's greatest legacy may be the number of anecdotes (some more believable than others) surrounding his pitching ability.

He was said to have thrown a pitch that tore off part of a batter's ear. Some observers believed that this incident made Dalkowski even more nervous and contributed further to his wildness.

Another story says that in 1960 at Stockton, he threw a pitch that broke umpire Doug Harvey's mask in three places, knocking him 18 feet back and sending him to a hospital for three days with a concussion.

Dalkowski once won a $5 bet with teammate Herm Starrette who said that he could not throw a baseball through a wall.

Dalkowski warmed up and then moved 15 feet (5 m) away from the wooden outfield fence. His first pitch went right through the boards. On another bet, Dalkowski threw a ball over a fence 440 feet away.

Inspirational book

SAN DIEGO – Dr. William Stephenson, PhD, dedicated a significant portion of his counseling practice to working with children, adolescents, and adults facing life-threatening illnesses with a prognosis of six months or less to live. Many of these individuals encountered personal and interpersonal difficulties that they aimed to resolve within their limited time frame. As Stephenson compiled a list of these challenges, he recognized their universality—they resonated with people across various life circumstances. These common concerns became the focal point of his latest book, "Teachable Moments: Lessons to Enrich Our Mental Health, Our Spiritual Journey and Our Relationships" (published by WestBow Press).

In this book, Stephenson elucidates strategies for confronting the quandary of deeply rooted pain inflicted by someone seeking forgiveness. This particular challenge is just one among several human behaviors explored, which frequently disturb one's peace at night.

These encompass feelings of resentment, urges for revenge, tendencies toward risk-taking, experiences of Steelhead at Nimbus Fish Hatchery on the American River in the Sacramento metropolitan area.

California's Central Valley rivers have seen what the California Department of Fish and Wildlife has described as "incredibly strong" steelhead returns this year.

This is in contrast to the record low fall-run Chinook salmon returns on the mainstem Sacramento River that have led to another year of severely limited salmon fishing opportunities or closures. A new record for the number of steelhead returning to the Mokelumne River was set this year.

A total of 1,749 steelhead, including 968 adults and 781 fish under 18 inches, have come back to the system this season, reported William Smith, manager of the Mokelumne River Fish Hatchery.

The previous record for total steelhead was in 2018 when the hatchery reported 530 adults and 638 juveniles, a total of 1168 fish.

However, there was another year when the total number of adults was over 700 fish.

The majority of steelhead are in the 18" to 24" range, with a few larger fish mixed. One of the steelhead returning this year weighed 13-1/2 pounds, but it was apparently from Nimbus Fish Hatchery on the American River, said Smith.

A total of 210,000 yearling steelhead have been released into the system this year, according to Smith. The hatchery has taken close to 770,000 steelhead eggs this season. Smith attributes the record steelhead run to the big water years in 2023 and 2024 to date, along with the CDFW and EBMUD's analysis of genetic studies and release strategies to improve the fish population.

The record steelhead run follows a record salmon run. A total of 28,614 fall-run Chinook salmon returned to the Mokelumne River in 2023 — 5,700 of those fish were grilse (two-year-olds) and the rest were adults, said EBMUD Manager of Fisheries and

CDFW Supporting Steelhead of American, Mokelumne and Feather

Wildlife Michelle Workman.

However, the Mokelumne River is a tributary of the San Joaquin River, not the Sacramento River, so it isn't included in the Sacramento River ocean abundance estimates developed by the Na-

Michelle Machado, the new Nurserywoman in Linden, gave an inspiring presentation talk recently to the Linden Garden Club. Michelle has been very active in Linden for many years. She is a staff writer for the Stockton Record newspaper.

Also involved in 4-H and volunteered at the Linden Community Pre School. She also taught religious education at the Holy Cross Catholic Church. However, her love has always been gardening. She spent many weekends working at the Capitol Nursery. Her passion for gardening expanded.

Later Michelle, has opened her own nursery named the French Bee Nursery on Duncan Road in Linden. Open seasonally, Thursday through Sunday. She believes in growing a community of gardeners, focusing on education, loneliness, and even moments of doubt regarding the efficacy of prayer. Designed for personal reflection or as a resource for adult classes or group discussions, this book offers insights into navigating these complex emotional landscapes.

"This book isn't about abstract theories; it's about tackling real-life situations head-on with practical steps. While it doesn't claim to provide all the answers, it offers valuable perspective and helps to alleviate the often exaggerated drama associated with these challenges," Stephenson emphasizes. "The personal testimonies shared in each chapter distinguish it from many other books on the human experience."

When asked about his desired takeaway for readers, Stephenson replied, "I hope readers realize they're not alone in their struggles. They can find solace in knowing others have faced similar challenges and have overcome them. They can rediscover hope, belief, and trust. May the stories shared within these pages inspire and empower them to reignite hope—for themselves and for those they cherish and who cherish them in return."

tional Marine Fisheries Service that are the basis for determining ocean and river salmon fisheries in California every year.

The Mokelumne provided anglers with some solid steelhead fishing this year. Samuel Boyd Yoro of Watsonville and his nephew Bodhi had a great trip steelhead fishing on the Mokelumne below Camanche Dam in February.

“Bodhi caught and released his very first chrome-bright steelhead,” said Yoro. “His Mokelumne River hatchery fish fought a solid bout, jumping and flipping out, but obviously not able to spit the hook out of its mouth.”

Other Central Valley rivers saw robust steelhead runs also, according to CDFW data. The Feather River Fish Hatchery exceeded its 2023 total of some 1,200 steelhead on the very first day it opened its fish ladder in January, wrapping up the spawning season with 2,277 returning fish.

The Nimbus Fish Hatchery on the American River, home to both Central Valley steelhead and a larger coastal strain of Eel River steelhead introduced decades ago, saw 3,178 steelhead return to the hatchery in 2024. That is one of its highest totals in many years, according to CDFW staff.

Meanwhile, the Pacific Fishery Management Council (PFMC) has produced three options for ocean salmon seasons beginning May 16, 2024, CDFW reported. Two of the three alternatives would authorize short ocean salmon season dates and establish small harvest limits for commercial and sport fishing off California in 2024. The third alternative would close the ocean fisheries off California for a second consecutive year. The alternatives were approved by the PFMC for public review Monday.

The 2024 stock abundance forecast for Sacramento River Fall Chinook, usually the most abundant stock in the ocean fishery, is only 213,600 adults. Abundance of Klamath River Fall Chinook is forecast at 180,700 adults.

With its unique round architecture overlooking Don Pedro Dam and reservoir, the Don Pedro Recreation Agency Visitor Center offers a stunning view of the Yosemite back-country peaks of Mt. McClure, Mt. Lyell, Mt. Florence and Mt. Clark. Interpretive exhibits highlighting the Don Pedro Recreation Area, the local area history, construction of the reservoir and dams along the Tuolumne River watershed and the flora and fauna of the area are housed by the building. The building also serves as the Don Pedro Recreation Agency's headquarters.

Spring wildflower displays as viewed from the visitor center are exceptional, with the face of the dam covered with lupine and the surrounding hills covered in hues of yellow, white, purple and blue. The habitat around the visitor center attracts wildlife year around. Bald and golden eagles, osprey, red tail hawks and other raptors, waterfowl, a large variety of songbirds, deer, bobcat, coyote and many other native California foothill wildlife inhabitants are common visitors to the area around the facility.

Picnic tables and benches outside of the visitor center offer a chance to rest and enjoy the scenery lion from a Powerball ticket her son gave her because he was leaving on a vacation.

Maria Roldan of Vienna told Virginia Lottery officials her son gave her the Powerball ticket he bought from the 7-Eleven on Gallows Road in Dunn Loring because he was leaving for a vacation and wouldn't be around for the drawing.

Roldan's ticket matched the first five winning numbers in the March 11 drawing, making her the only $1 million winner in the country that night.

The winner's son accompanied her to claim her winnings at Virginia Lottery headquarters. He recalled his reaction upon finding out how much she had won: "You are kidding, right?"

Montana moose is on the loose

April 19 (UPI) — A wandering moose on the loose sparked a temporary shelter-in-place order at a Montana high school before the animal was chased off by a wildlife control officer and police.

Sean McCarthy, an urban wildlife control officer for the city of Helena, said the female moose was spotted Friday morning outside Capital High School.

McCarthy initially used loud noises to chase the moose off school grounds, but the agitated animal repeatedly charged at him, leading him to request assistance from the Helena Police Department.

McCarthy told the Independent Record newspaper that the "stubborn and mangy old cow moose" had been seen on multiple occasions during the past week visiting the duck ponds at the nearby Lewis and Clark County Fairgrounds.

"We are blessed to live in an area where we get to experience wildlife," McCarthy said. "But, obviously this could pose a danger to the public."

A shelter-in-place order was instituted at the school while McCarthy and police officers chased the moose a safe distance north of campus.

Public drunken Connecticut buzzards hauled off to sober up overnight

April 19 (UPI) — An animal rescue group in Connecticut said a pair of drunk buzzards were treated with fluids and "a big breakfast" before being released.

A Place Called Hope said that the "dynamic duo" had been "dumpster diving" and ended up eating something "that was fermented enough to cause severe intoxication."

The rescue said the buzzards were initially thought to be seriously ill, but testing confirmed they were merely "too drunk to fly."

"They only needed fluids and to be tucked in overnight... and fed a BIG breakfast the next day," the post said.

The buzzards were released back into the wild and successfully rejoined their colony. "Remember, your cocktail fruit that ends up in a dumpster can end up intoxicating wildlife if the dumpster is not kept closed," the post said.

Marriage saved after wedding ring found

April 18 (UPI) — A wedding ring lost on Texas' Galveston Island was returned to its owner's finger after being found by a couple attempting to remove an old net from the sand.

Deysi Maldonado said she was visiting Galveston Island with her family and only realized hours after digging through the sand that her wedding ring set was missing from her finger.

Maldonado enlisted the help of the Galveston Island Treasure Hunters Club, a Facebook group for metal detecting enthusiasts.

Scott Pearse and Clyde Longworth took their metal detectors to the beach to search for the ring, but soon discovered Maldonado's diamond ring had already been found.

Caleb Brignac said he and his girlfriend had only been at the beach for about 15 minutes when they spotted a fishing net partially buried in the shallow water.

Brignac started digging the net out from the sand, and when he tossed a handful of shells to the side he saw a diamond ring fly through the air.

The couple saw Pearse and Longworth using his metal detectors nearby and approached them with their discovery.

Pearse said it was a particularly lucky discovery, because it turned out the ring had been buried so deep in the sand that their metal detectors likely wouldn't have found it.

Marriage lost after clerk's error found

April 18 (UPI) — An estranged British couple found their 21-year marriage unexpectedly ended when a law firm's clerical error finalized their divorce.

The couple, identified only as Mr. and Mrs. Williams, separated in 2023 and were in the process of working out the financial details of their marriage's impending end when they accidentally became divorced as a result of a mistake by the wife's representatives at London law firm Vardags.

The firm, headed by self-proclaimed "diva of divorce" Ayesha Vardag, explained the couple's divorce was the result of a clerical error.

Vardag said the lawyers were working on another client's divorce when they opened the Williams' case file by mistake and applied for a final divorce order.

Lawyers discovered the mistake two days later and Vardag asked the High Court to nullify the Williams' divorce, but Andrew McFarlane, the president of the Family Division, rejected the appeal.

"There is a strong public policy interest in respecting the certainty and finality that flows from a final divorce order and maintaining the status quo that it has established," the judge said in his decision.

Vardag said she strongly disagrees with McFarlane's decision.

Massive en pointe by NY ballerinas

April 18 (UPI) — New York's famous Plaza Hotel hosted a Guinness World Record-breaking event featuring 353 ballerinas en pointe at the same time.

The nonprofit Youth America Grand Prix, which organizes competitions for young dancers, celebrated its 25th anniversary by gathering the white tutu-clad ballerinas at the hotel and having them all go en pointe — the ballet term for dancing on the toes — for a full minute.

The attempt took the record for most ballet dancers en pointe simultaneously from a 2019 event that featured 309 dancers, including talk show host Kelly Ripa. "The big why of why we're doing it is to really let the world know that dance is a healing force," Sergey Gordeev, director of external affairs at YAGP, told Gothamist. "Dance is a power that brings us connection at a time when we're so disconnected."
